PENNOYER'S MESSAGE TO GRESHAM.

On May 3d, when the Administration had decided to take a new departure and suspend the provisions of an act of congress which was to take effect May 6th. W. Q. Gresham, secretary of state, telegraphed the governors of the Pacific coast states "that reports, apparently reliable, indicate danger of violence to the Chinese when the exclusion act takes effect and the president earnestly hopes you will employ all lawful means for their protection."

Governor Pennoyer of Oregon immediately replied to W. Q. Gresham, "I will attend to my business; let the president attend to his."

That the president and secretary of state overstepped the bounds of courtesy as well as duty is very generally conceded. Governor Pennoyer said Gresham's dispatch was a deliberate insult to the state of Oregon, and he answered it as it deserved. Congress passed a law, and the president instead of enforcing it, entered into an agreement with the Chinese Six Companies to suspend its operations. If the act is declared constitutional the president will be in the position of a lawbreaker, hence to save his reputation it will be necessary to declare the law unconstitutional.

The independent press and citizens of the country commend Governor Pennoyer's blunt reply to Mr. Gresham. The Lassen Advocate says: "Call him what names you please; ridicule, denounce and condemn him; there is yet a spice of independence and a real strong flavor of official integrity and American manhood about his utterances which the masses will tacitly approve. Pennoyer, governor, may be a 'crank,' but he evidently is not a time-serving, lick-spittle."

The New York Sun, which shines for all and toads to none, throws its rays on the subject and illuminates it so clearly in the following language that even those who bow before the administration shrine "that office may follow fawning" cannot fail to see that the sturdy, brusque and independent governor of Oregon was right:

"As a direct and energetic statement of the constitutional relations between the chief executive of the federal government and the chief magistrate of one of the states of the Union, Pennoyer's reply to Mr. Cleveland is unexceptionable. It is not often that a dozen words convey a greater constitutional truth or a sounder declaration of purpose. If Mr. Cleveland had received from Governor Pennoyer a dispatch urging him to do his plain duty in a manner entirely within the president's province, and entirely outside the province of the governor of Oregon, and if the president had telegraphed: 'I will attend to my business; let the governor of Oregon attend to his,' it is quite conceivable that some people might regard the answer from Washington as an epigrammatic rebuke, and an assertion of official dignity worthy of a place in history. It would certainly be an impertinence for Governor Pennoyer to assume that Mr. Cleveland was not wide awake to the duties of his office, or that he did not intend to enforce to the best of his ability the laws which he had sworn to execute."

"Governor Pennoyer might have been more polite. Barring considerations of taste, he could not have expressed with greater force or in fewer words, the fundamental idea upon which the Union of states was constructed and still exists."

THE FINANCIAL CRISIS IN THE EAST.

Wall street insists on the gold or single standard being adopted in the United States. The Harrison administration, to please Wall street, adopted the single standard and Cleveland's administration is pursuing the course marked out by Harrison. On the financial question, which is the paramount one of the day, Harrison and Cleveland are in full accord. The former paid out no silver coin for government expenditures and the latter redeems all obligations in gold. Millions of dollars in gold have been shipped out of the country in the last two years and as the government puts very little silver in circulation there is a scarcity of money. There is not enough gold to redeem a fractional part of the obligations of the country and failures of banks and commercial houses are an every day occurrence. The crash which the silver men predicted would result from the policy of the treasury department in treating silver as a commodity and which could have been averted by the coinage and use of silver as well as gold has come and is much more disastrous to business in the east than on this coast. Money is scarce here as in the east, but banks and business houses are not going under here as they are in the Atlantic States.

What effect these failures will have on the financial question can only be surmised at present. Much will depend upon the action of creditors. If they attempt to enforce payment a panic will ensue as there is not money enough in the country to supply the demands of commerce. Congress if convened might relieve the stringency by passing an act to coin the bullion in the treasury, but with an administration hostile to that policy relief cannot be expected from that quarter.

The people, who are nominally sovereigns and might be so in reality if they did not permit themselves to be tools of political tricksters, have only themselves to blame for the unfortunate condition of financial affairs. One half the money of ultimate redemption has been demonetized in the interest of the great money lenders of the world, and the outrage condoned through the machinations of place hunting politicians, who play upon men's prejudices and get them to support the parties that are responsible for the infamy. To-day the United States, which should be the most prosperous nation on the face of the globe, is threatened with a financial panic because of the scarcity of money, when there is sufficient money locked up in its treasury vaults to coin $150,000,000. Instead, however, of coining this silver and putting it in circulation either as coin or silver notes to relieve the stringency and supply the demands of trade, the gold men want bonds issued and the national debt increased to make money scarcer.

The editor of the JOURNAL has spent over half his life in Nevada; he pays his honest debts; does not go round surcharged with whisky villifying respectable people; advocates free coinage as he has done for years, regardless of political parties; has not seen a copy of the Salt Lake Tribune since the state was flooded with it last fall to influence voters to support a goldbug candidate, and in a community where he is known as wholly indifferent as to what those who pretend to be silver men, while advocating the success of parties known to be opposed to it, may say of him.

THE MONEY QUESTION.

Endeavoring to Prevent a Split in Congress.

Special to the JOURNAL.]

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The Star has this: The Democratic leaders in congress and the administration are trying to come to an understanding as to the policy of the next congress by which they can avoid the danger of a split in the party on the money question and secure united action on several important questions which will present themselves. It is the present understanding that a compromise proposition to dispose of the silver question by accompanying the repeal of the Sherman law with the repeal of the 10 per cent tax on state bank currency, which will receive the sanction of the administration, and the men in congress who are fighting against any contraction of the currency will be satisfied to let go of silver if they can get state currency. It is designed also to levy an income tax, and it believed Cleveland will favor this. Briefly, there are four things which it is the desire of party leaders of the coming congress should dispose of as speedily as possible, and it is believed Cleveland will dwell upon all of them in his first message. They are the repeal of the federal election laws, to levy an income tax, repeal the Sherman law and tax of state bank currency and complete a revision of the tariff, making a very decided reduction of duties all along the line.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—At the close of business to-day the treasury had on hand $24,425 of "free gold," and accepted, but not yet put on the books, $1,176,000, making a "free gold" balance of $3,000,000 above $1,000,000 gold reserve. The gold came from the west. Among treasury officials the financial situation is regarded with satisfaction.

Checking the Growth of the Pension List.

Special to the JOURNAL.]

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Pension Commissioner Lochran issued an order to-day revoking the celebrated "completed files" order of Commissioner Ream. Hereafter all pending claims in each class will be taken up for consideration in the order in which the unconsidered evidence is filed. It is calculated that under the new administration a check is going to be given to the rapid growth of pension lists, even without the assistance of any legislation. When the pension appropriation bill was passed at the last session of congress, it was expected the amount appropriated would be about fifteen millions short of the expenditures for this fiscal year. It was anticipated that a deficiency of that amount would have to be provided for at the coming session. The average number of pension cases passed on each month is expected, however, to be but about one-third of what it was under the former administration of the office, and that instead of a deficiency there will be a surplus of about $6,000,000.

Large Attendance at the Fair.

Special to the JOURNAL.]

CHICAGO, May 13.—Despite the chilly wind and leaden sky, visitors were not frightened from the fair grounds this morning, but came in such hordes till at noon, when the wind died away and the sun came out it is estimated that some 60,000 visitors on the grounds.

A noticeable feature was the number of school children who were taking advantage of the weekly holiday to pay a visit to the fair.

The curiosity aroused as to the comparative attendance at the commencement of the centennial and the present exposition was gratified to-day by the publication of official figures which show the attendance at the world's fair during the first eleven days nearly 219,000 greater than at the centennial at a corresponding period. The white city was transferred to-night into a city of rainbow tint. Plans for the first complete illumination were perfected and the spectacle surpassed anything of the sort ever attempted. Nearly all who came out during the day remained for the evening display, and so many more came in the evening that the attendance of the day was nearly doubled.

About Sunday Opening.

Special to the JOURNAL.]

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Assistant Secretary Curtis of the treasury department, who has charge of World's Fair matters, said to-day that until the decision of the World's Fair directors to open on Sunday came to him in an official manner he must decline to express any opinion as to what action, if any, the treasury officials might feel called upon to take in regard to the undelivered balance of souvenir coins. Inquiry at the department of justice as to the decision of the board of directors to open the World's Fair grounds on Sundays has developed a feeling favorable to it. It is pointed out that the law provides that government exhibits of the exposition shall be closed on Sunday. Attorney-General Olney will not express an opinion, but prominent officials in the department do not hesitate to approve the action already taken as being within the law, but express the hope that means may be found to throw open the exposition on Sundays.

UNDER THE DOME.

America's Architectural Epic—Some Interesting Information Concerning the Capitol—The Supreme Court.
By C. D. Van Duser.

When you see the capitol building for the first time a feeling of disappointment comes over you. So much has been written of its beauty that your ideal calls for something which the first glimpse of it is inadequate to satisfy. This feeling, as you become more and more familiar with the building, gives away to one of wonderment and appreciation of

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL BUILDING You ever beheld. Its glistening dome is the first thing you see approaching the city and the last thing that fades from view as you leave. The architecture is not of a single distinctive type but is composite. There are other buildings in the world famous for beauty more delicately traced in outlines and more exquisite in detail, but in massive grandeur none approach the capitol building of our nation. It is said to be the most perfectly proportioned building in the world for its size. Others approach but do not equal it. It is the epic poem of architecture. The massive marble columns that have made the architecture of Greece and Rome famous, and which never tire the eyes by their simple beauty, are a striking characteristic of the building. Each of the public buildings in the city have a different style, for while the treasury is surrounded and supported by Doric columns, the patent office is Ionic and the postoffice Corinthian, while the state, war and navy, with its delicate beauty and pleasing architectural effects, which is unsurpassed in this country, is of the Italian Renaissance. In the famous churches we have the spires of the Gothic, and in the ungainly and awkward barn-like building, the pension office, we have modern American architecture with its purely utilitarian with no artistic effect. But the capitol is the one thing of beauty that you marvel at, admire and go into raptures over. Of course, some people may see nothing in such a building but a large structure for government use, but people who can gaze at its classic outlines and fail to receive that inspiration that one does from the reading of an exquisite poem, from hearing an eloquent oration or inspecting a beautiful painting can get but little out of life. To such a person I would say read Ruskin and learn, then to hear music in the running brook, read sermons from stones and revel in the intoxication and delights that a landscape may produce on the mind that see life in its perfection in inanimate nature.

During the sessions of congress the building is constantly thronged with statesmen, politicians and secretaries, newspaper men and distinguished visitors and the idle spectators. Every portion of the building is open for inspection, and there are enough points of interest in the way of statuary, paintings, frescoes and historical representations in marble and bronze to keep the student of history reveling in delights for a week.

ITS LOCATION AND SURROUNDINGS. The building is on an eminence commanding a fine view of the city. It is surrounded by an extensive lawn, which, under the care of a skillful landscape gardener, has been rendered beautiful. Trees, shrubs, vines and flowers; fountains, shady bowers and winding driveways afford a succession of beautiful effects. Approaching it from Pennsylvania avenue, after leaving Peace monument, you walk up an ascending avenue lined on both sides by large shade trees. A succession of elegant flights of marble steps bring you to the wide and elegant terrace from which the city is seen partially below and in front of you. The terrace is the level from which one enters through the main doorway. It is several hundred feet wide. Iron railings, marble balustrades, lamps with handsome glass globes, with large pots containing palms and semi-tropical plants, make it a place of beauty where one rests after climbing the long steps. Immediately beneath one are several stories partially underground in which are many of the lesser committee rooms, engine and power house and rooms stored with ancient documents and a world of things connected with the government. It is a subterranean cavern with as many winding passages and labyrinths as the Pyramids of Egypt. It is related as a fact, and is not a mere idle tradition, that during the war a soldier wandered in there when it was as yet not fully completed and became lost. He was never seen afterwards and the supposition is that his bones lie in some forgotten spot which forms his sepulchre.

ITS DIMENSION AND COST. The central portion of the building was completed in 1827. It is constructed of Virginia sandstone, painted white. The senate and house wings were erected at a later period. The total length of the building is 751 feet, its width 354 feet; this includes steps and porticoes. It covers an area of four acres. Its extreme height is 307 feet six inches. The huge dome which crowns this noble structure is constructed of cast iron, and weighs 4,000 tons. It took eight years to complete it. Its base consists of a peristyle of thirty-six fluted columns surrounded by an entablature and a balustrade. On the top of the dome is an immense bronze figure of Liberty, which is nineteen feet and a half high, weighs seven tons and a half, and cost $24,000. The dome itself cost $1,250,000 and the capitol over $18,000,000.

There is no business transacted at the capitol except that of legislation, although the supreme court chambers

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

are in a portion of the building. The library of congress is in a wing of the capitol but will soon be moved from its inadequate quarters to the new building which is being erected east of the capitol. The library of congress is one of the interesting objects and its high, dingy alcoves are filled with books and documents. They are piled in all directions, and while it has the air of a typical old library, where one can delve into the ancient tomes that lead back into distant ages, yet it is ill-adapted to represent so famous a collection as it contains.

THE SUPREME COURT CHAMBER. One of the handsomest rooms is the supreme court chamber. It is elegantly furnished in plush and is semi-circular in form. Rich draperies hang above the bench where the robed and gowned judges sit, the embodiment of dignity and judicial learning. It is a famous room.

In the early history of the nation this room was occupied by the senate, but since 1860 it has been the quarters of the supreme court. The court is in session from October until May, while the judges, during the rest of the year, act in their respective circuits. The chamber itself is a beautiful specimen of classic architecture. On the walls can be seen marble busts of the deceased chief justices. The central portion of the chamber has large mahogany tables and chairs for the use of the bar. In this small, semi-circular hall has been heard the eloquence of Webster, Calhoun, Clay and all the great statesmen, while in later years some of the most important legal questions with which lawyers ever wrestled have been argued by the best legal talent in America. The sittings of the court begin at noon, when the chief justice calls all persons in the room to rise and then announces "The honorable the chief justices and the associate justices of the supreme court of the United States." The justices, clad in long, flowing silken robes, come in, bow to the bar and spectators and are seated, the chief justice in the center and the associates on either side, in order of their appointment. Whereupon the chief justice, in the ancient language of the English bar, says: "Oyez, oyez, oyez, all persons having business with the supreme court of the United States are admonished to draw near and give their attention, for the court is now sitting. God save the United States and this honorable court."

The intercourse between judges and the bar is most pleasant and courteous. It is an exceedingly interesting spot and a most impressive place. Court adjourns promptly at 4 o'clock each day, when the justices retire and colored attendants remove their robes while they pass out by a side door.

The other important rooms of the buildings are the senate house, president's room, restaurant and the many reception rooms and elegant corridors. Of these I will speak in my next.

SAN FRANCISCO UNEMPLOYED.

They Make an Earnest Appeal for Assistance.

The San Francisco unemployed numbering over 3,000 persons, who want work, but cannot procure it, have appealed to the commissioners of the World's Columbian Exposition for assistance. They do not impeach the well-known generosity of the citizens of San Francisco as there is but one interpretation to be placed upon their action, and that is inability to respond to their appeal. This, they believe, is attributable to a financial stringency and business depression. They ask for the aid of the press in support of their appeal, which is as follows:

"Owing to the evils of murderous competition, the supplanting of manual labor by machinery, excessive Mongolian and pauper immigration, the curse of absentee landlordism, and worst of all, a villainous system of finance which has restricted the circulating medium of the United States to less than six dollars per capita, we, the heretofore subscribing American citizens, residents of the city and county of San Francisco, find ourselves and families, with thousands of our fellow-citizens, in a condition of hopeless destitution.

"We have appealed to our local authorities and fellow-citizens in vain. Nothing has been done.

"In the name of God and our common humanity, we appeal to all good people to help us to that immediate succor our desperate straits demand.

"Indorsing and requesting compliance with the request of the unemployed to the World's Columbian Exposition commission for a California day, we have heretofore placed our hands and seal."

Mark Lane, a notary public in and for the city and county of San Francisco, duly commissioned and sworn, certifies that he has carefully counted the signatures attached to the declaration of destitution and finds that there are over 3,000 signatures thereto.

BREVITIES.

The Austin Revelle says Lander county has no interest in the suit brought to recover about $1,000 from Humboldt county for the support of a pauper who it was claimed belonged to Humboldt and recently decided in favor of Humboldt.

Major C. B. Woodruff, "the Orator of the Army," as he is designated by his comrades, has been chosen to deliver the Memorial Day address at San Francisco. The Major has already accepted the invitation to deliver the fourth of July oration at Reno.

The county commissioners suggests that all business houses and residences within the town limits be numbered. The names of the principal streets are now painted in plain letters on corners, and the next step in advance will be numbering the buildings on those streets.

The Rev. J. K. McLean, D. D., pastor of the First Congregational church of Oakland, and Rev. J. H. Warren, D. D. of San Francisco, will be present and assist at the dedicatory services in the new Congregational Church on Sunday. Fine music will also be one of the interesting features of the occasion.

North Glendale Fire.

A fire at North Glendale; yesterday morning destroyed W. P. Van Meter's residence with all its contents. Mrs. Van Meter was absent in Reno and Mr. Van Meter lighted a fire in the kitchen stove, after which he attended to some work in the yard. Upon re-entering the house he discovered that the building was on fire, and the flames spread so rapidly it was impossible to save anything. The value of the house and contents was placed at $2,500. Mr. Van Meter carried an insurance on the property of $1,500 in the Sun Company of London.

The Order of Fall Leaves.

What sorrow of old memories, of illusions faded, of dreams foregone, of friendships chilled, of gold turned gray, come into the heart as under the straying feet the first of autumn's fallen leaves lie beneath our feet. To the keen sense there is in the new fallen snow its own odor of cold, frank cleanliness.—Boston Commonwealth.

The small town of Grifton, N. C., can probably lay claim to more divisions than any other small place in the country. It is located in two counties, three townships, two congressional districts, two senatorial districts and two judicial circuits.
